We respectfully announce to our friends and customers, that cough the total destruction of our PRINTIN ; ESTABLISH MENT recessarily devolves heavy loss upon us, we hope in a few days to be able to FILL THEIR ORDERS AS HERETOFORE. We have OPENED AN OFFICE at No. 49 ANN-ST., immediely in the rear of our old stand, where we shall shortly hav

stely in the rear of our old stand, where we shall shortly have every facility for the transaction of our Business.

The Press Builders, Type-Founders, &c., are seconding our of-forts in a truly generous spirit and will work their establishments sight and day unti our large enders are filled.

The sudden interruption of so extensive and presperous a busi-ness, upon which depended the accommodation of so many valua-ble friends and customers, and the prompt publication of several sewspacers and periodicals apart from the permutary loss to our-extensions. eves, leaves a painful auxiety for the many friends who are efferers with us. And this will be an additional incentive to en-getic efforts to place curselves in a position to be again worthy of

We desire in this connection to return our grateful thanks to be very many kind friends who so generously tendered valuable aid and assistance in our emergency, and also to those oustomers dence to themselves. They have placed us unde

To the Editor of The N V. Tribune.

Six: We desire to correct an error in your account of the fire at our establishment, No. 113 Fulton-at., published in Monday's Tribune. It is there stated that the fire originated on the second floor, caused by the carelessness of one of ... or employees in leaving a gas light burning too near the wood-work. The Engineer, who was on duty on Saturday night, and whom we have always found treatworthy, reports that he turned off the gas at the main pipe about 7 o'clock in the evening, and that at 9 o'clock he made his usual patriof of the building, assing through the se ond floor of the upper stories, and at that time all was asie. It is therefore not possible that the fire could have originated in the masner stated.

This is one of the most interesting Games that has been issued for years. It occupies a place between chess and checkers, being more complicated than checkers, yet avoiding the intricacy of chess. Every piece is of equal value, but has a greater variety of moves (and consequently more power) in certain positions then others. It is entirely new in all its designs, and as it is more easily understood, will make its way into every parlor along with chess and checkers. It is finished in good style, and sold at

For the rehearsal of an adaptation, by JOERTH JEFFERSON, of Charles Dicken's beautiful bone s or y.

Written in the early bloom of his genius, while his profession of reporter brought him—happily for the world, and what is beautiful within it—in daily contact with strange somes, and strange men, and strange mannece, the story of Ul war Twist develops more strongly than any other of Dickens's we keep sympathy with human suffering, and all that is good and noble, passion for picture, that isrge and loving humanity, that deep sympathy with human suffering, and all that is good and noble, showever poor and lowly on this earth, which has made his name, in a thousand of households, a name of blessing, and stamped him as the most earnest champion now living of family life and virtue, and the eternal fee of selfishness and vice. Long before aught of his found a home in print, little Paul, and little Nell and little Oliver, had found a home in his big heart, and there he warmed them, and warmed them until the free cought the mind, and the mind touched the heart, and forth sprang a snory—a story full of all those sad things and say things he had met in his daily walks in life—full of quaint funcies and genial figures, full of small angel voices, and little merry bells, and cheerful crackling fires—full of poor little children coat help-leasly on cold, cold streets and of egres and fir nds to human shape, who beat them and kept them to hard work—full in fact, of all the features of London humanity, as seen by Charles Dickens. Full of such is the story of CLIVER TWIST,

Which has been adapted for the state by JOSEPH JEFFERSON, and will be presented at the Garden on THURNDAY NIGHT.

All great acting is simply individual nature, directed by mimic art, and the extraordinary adaptability or the great artists now gathered at the Winter Garden to represent the powerful types of character contained in the story, first augestad to Mr. Jefferson the revival and firsh adaptation of this ara as, which, it may be remembered, created,
